6.3%

The state's unemployment rate dropped to just above 6 percent in April, according to data released Thursday by the state Office of Labor and Workforce Development. The figure dropped from the 6.5 percent jobless rate in March. It is also below the national rate of 8.1 percent. Officials estimated 2,500 jobs were added in April. ● METRO

Board approves college dorm building plans

BOSTON. The Boston Redevelopment Authority recently approved a new master plan by Emmanuel College that includes new buildings and renovations.

The plan calls for the demolition of a building on Brookline Avenue and the construction of a new, 17-story building on the site.

The 220,000-square-foot Julie Hall will include 720 dorm beds, academic space, a dining hall and student life space.

Two hundred new parking spaces will also be created in a below-grade garage. ● METRO

Man faces child porn charges

TAUNTON. A 29-year-old Taunton man was charged Thursday in federal court with allegedly possessing thousands of images of child pornography.

FBI agents in Los Angeles discovered David McLellan was allegedly sharing images through a peer-to-peer sharing website, according to a federal complaint.

During a search of his home, authorities found "tens of thousands of child pornography images" and hundreds of videos. One of the videos depicts him performing oral sex on an 11-month-old girl, authorities said. ● METRO

After massive blackout, Council seeks answers

► Inspection, care of power transformers subject of city council hearing ► Emergency responders, NStar officials invited to testify ► Council demands change

Saying that changes need to be made to the way power transformers are maintained and inspected, the City Council scheduled a hearing for Friday in the wake of the massive Back Bay blackout earlier this year.

Councilor Stephen Murphy, who requested the hearing, expected to question NStar officials about ways to improve preventative maintenance, frequency of inspections and the emergency response to transformer malfunctions.

A massive transformer failure at a substation on Scotia Street cut power to about 21,000 homes and businesses in March. Some people went without power for days while some businesses lost customers and eateries lost their inventory.

At issue, Murphy said, is

"There was huge costs to us and every business and resident whose food spoiled."

COUNCILOR STEPHEN MURPHY

how officials can verify the information and records of maintenance checks by power companies. Substations are inspected by NStar, which then submits reports to the state, according to the Herald.

"There is nothing to verify [it]," Murphy said. "No one inspects these facilities besides their own people."

Murphy said he wanted to discuss "verifiable independent inspections" of the transformers so city and state officials do not have to take the power company's own word.

Several councilors, he said, are moving forward and examining new and better ways to hold energy providers accountable for such incidents.

Despite demands by city officials that NStar pay for losses and the police response because of the outage, NStar officials said shortly after the blackout that they weren't liable for losses.

"There was huge costs to us and every business and resident whose food spoiled," Murphy said. "There were people from fixed income homes who had to throw out food because the power went out on their refrigerators."

STEVE ANNEAR and MICHAEL NAUGHTON

Preventing blackouts?

While the hearing was called to look at ways to prevent future blackouts, it was too late to prevent all of them.

A request for the hearing was filed in late March after the massive blackout earlier that month.

But a failure at the same substation May 8 created another blackout for about 12,000 homes and businesses. However, the most recent one lasted about an hour, compared to days for the March blackout. ● METRO/SA/MN

Boston native Donna Summer, Queen of Disco, dies at age 63

After a battle with cancer, singer Donna Summer died Thursday at the age of 63.

The singer, who was born LaDonna Gaines in Dorchester, was known as the "Queen of Disco" because of her string of megahits in the 1970s, which included "Hot Stuff," "Love to Love You Baby" and "Last Dance." In a little more than a year she charted four No. 1 singles.

Though she reached superstardom and earned most of her five Grammy awards in the disco era, Summer's success stretched into more contemporary times. She landed No. 1 singles in the '80s, '90s, 2000s and even this decade: "To Paris With Love" topped the charts in October of 2010.

The singer will probably best be remembered for not only her contribution to disco, but her help in inventing the genre with producer Giorgio Moroder.

But as the trend faded, Summer was able to distance herself from disco. She had one of her strongest hits in 1983 with "She Works Hard for the Money," an anthem of female empowerment that showed Summer was ready for the MTV age.

The singer's health declined while recently working on an album in Florida.

► Donna Summer took her "Last Dance" on Thursday.

Beantown girl

According to Boston.com, Donna Summer was born and raised in Boston.

Born LaDonna Gaines, Summer grew up in Mission Hill. Summer was active in the music program at the Jeremiah E. Burke High School in Dorchester.

► Although she reportedly got good grades, Summer left the Burke only two months shy of graduation.

► Summer told the Globe in a 1977 interview that a Hub neighborhood store gave her $700 in credit based on the fact that she would one day be famous. "Isn't that funny?" she told the Globe.

Super PAC attacks have yet to begin

For complaints, suggestions and digital attaboys, e-mail us at brayden.simms@metro.us.

In the campaign silly season, faux scandals erupt with the reliability of Old Faithful. And much like the famous Yellowstone geyser, they're mostly gone with predictable haste.

So it was on Thursday morning, when a front page story by The New York Times set the Internet atwitter with snark. The article in question, "G.O.P. 'Super PAC' Weighs Hard-Line Attack on Obama," detailed a provocative proposal for billionaire conservative Joe Ricketts to mount a super PAC offensive reiterating links between the president and his former pastor, Rev. Jeremiah Wright.

The proposal — from which Ricketts distanced himself following hours of Web mockery — played on right-wing fears that President Obama was never properly vetted by the media and that untold stories of his youth hold the key to understanding his allegedly radical beliefs. (The ones, presumably, that he hides beneath his disappointingly moderate exterior.)

One of the most damning elements of the report was the suggestion that Ricketts' Ending Spending Action Fund find an "extremely literate conservative African-American" spokesman, one who can isolate the group from charges of racism while calling attention to the reality of Mr. Obama's cultivated image as a "metrosexual, black Abe Lincoln."

► "That record was cool some four score and seven years ago!" Something that might be said by "metrosexual, black Abe Lincoln," maybe.

BRAYDEN SIMMS

POLITICAL WORLDLINESS FOR AN IMPOLITE WORLD

@METROPOLITIK

Twitter and assorted news outlets had a good deal of fun over it all (Call him the Great Manscaper!); Mitt Romney gave a half-throated condemnation of attack ads while taking the opportunity to attack his rival; and Ricketts said he'd spend his $10 million on another attack.

Meanwhile, we learned the lengths to which big-money donors may go to get a Republican in the White House. For billionaires like Ricketts, no price is too high if it can get us to buy into the myth that Obama is a dangerous extremist — so they can swoop into power and unfurl their own very real dangerous, extremist agenda.

Make no mistake: The super PAC era has only just begun.

Pinterest valued near $1.5B

Silicon Valley startup Pinterest raised $100 million from a group led by Japanese online retailer Rakuten Inc., valuing the company at about $1.5 billion and underscoring the huge investor appetite for social-networking companies.

Pinterest, an online scrapbook where users can "pin" images and follow others, has grown from less than 1 million users in May 2011 to about 20 million in April, according to IT research house comScore.

High valuations

Valuations for consumer-oriented tech startups have been rising dramatically, as shown by Facebook's $1 billion purchase of Instagram last month.

The 3-year-old company, led by co-founder Ben Silbermann, had been seeking financing for several weeks, but many investors were wary about the billion-dollar valuation, venture capitalists said.

That valuation puts Pinterest beyond the reach of all but a handful of potential acquirers, probably putting it onto a path for an eventual IPO rather than an acquisition.

"It was one of the most hotly contested and sought-after financing events in Silicon Valley in quite some time," said Mike Jaconi, a Rakuten executive. REUTERS

SUMMER MOVIES CONQUER ALL

► We've made it through a dismal spring loaded with murderous teens, a massive John Carter flop and dreary vampires ► Now it's time to enjoy the blockbusters that we hope are guaranteed to please

June 1

"Snow White and the Huntsman"

Whether or not you're a Kristen Stewart fan, one look at the trailer for this gritty re-imagining of the traditional fairy tale is enough to see that this ain't no "Twilight." Charlize Theron plays the evil Queen Ravenna, and Chris Hemsworth is the titular Huntsman who — though sent to slaughter Ms. White — becomes her mentor and protector.

► Girl can rock the withering stare. Charlize Theron smolders as Queen Ravenna.

June 8

"Prometheus"

We like to talk about Michael Fassbender quite a bit in this paper, because he is so devastatingly handsome. But the main attraction for the film in which he stars this summer is much larger than just one actor. Helmed by "Alien" director Ridley Scott, "Prometheus" shows what happens when humans in the future travel to a foreign planet to discover their origins.

COURTESY TWENTIETH CENTURY FOX

June 22

"Abraham Lincoln: Vampire Hunter"

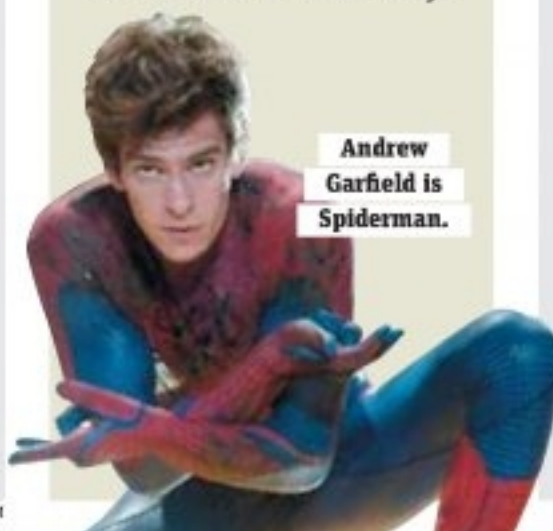

We're not sure how much a camp factor will come into play with this wacky idea for a film, considering President Lincoln will be played by high-brow Juilliard grad Benjamin Walker. But the plot summary really is that Abraham Lincoln decides to vanquish those vamps once he realizes they are planning to take over the U.S.

STEPHEN VAUGHAN TM

July 3

"The Amazing Spiderman"

Even though there have been a bajillion iterations of Spidey in the last several years, everyone's anxious to get a look at this one, portrayed by "The Social Network"'s Andrew Garfield and co-starring his real-life girlfriend Emma Stone as Gwen Stacy.

Andrew Garfield is Spiderman.

July 20

"The Dark Knight Rises"

The final installation of Christopher Nolan's brilliant imagining of Batman has a few tricks up its sleeve, if the spooky trailer is any indication. Tom Hardy is Bane, one of the nastiest nemeses the Dark Knight has ever encountered. And then there's Anne Hathaway slinking around as the seductively dangerous Selina Kyle.

RON PHILLIPS

Aug. 3

"The Bourne Legacy"

Can Jeremy Renner fill Matt Damon's shoes in the Bourne series? Starring as Aaron Cross, Renner's first major starring role details the story of a man who must deal with the consequences of Jason Bourne's actions where "The Bourne Ultimatum" left off.

Why hello, better movies

The first half of the year is a notorious dumping ground for studio stinkers — save "The Hunger Games," of course. We've suffered enough! "The Avengers" was just a tasting of the treats in store over the next three months as things heat up in the city. First, we take a look at some of the most hotly anticipated films that we've been dying to see since well before the new year.

Killer comedies

The summer months are the best time for top-notch funny men and women to take over the box office. So take that, Batman.

JUNE

"That's My Boy," June 15

We're hoping that the presence of "Saturday Night Live"'s Andy Samberg will make this movie not stink, especially considering

► "Madea's Witness Protection"

LONGCATE PICTURE:

Adam Sandler's last few films were truly awful ("Jack and Jill," we're looking at you). In this one, Sandler plays a man-child who fathered and raised his own child (Samborg) when he was only 18. When they reconnect several years later, each finds themselves coming undone.

"Seeking a Friend for the End of the World," June 22

Consider this one the flip side of "Melancholia," since it also deals with a heavenly body that is destined to come crashing into Earth. But here, with Steve Carrell and Keira Knightley co-starring, it's a comedy!

"Madea's Witness Protection," June 29

Oh Madea, Madea, Madea. What are you up to now? Rather than getting into trouble herself, she's hosting a family who is a part of the witness protection program.

summer movie guide

For the family

Cranky kids (and adults) always brighten up at the prospect of a couple hours in full-blast air conditioning, and these films will be the icing on that cake.

MAY

"Men In Black 3," May 25

Agent J (Will Smith) must go back in time to the 1960s to save his friend, Agent K (played by Tommy Lee Jones in the "present" and Josh Brolin in the 1960s) before a disaster befalls him.

JUNE

"Madagascar 3: Europe's Most Wanted," June 8

The runaways from their New York City zoo find themselves in Monte Carlo, joining a circus traveling through Europe in order to remain under cover.

► Will Smith is back in time with "Men In Black 3."

"Brave," June 22

It's been so many years, but when asked to do a Scottish accent, we still revert back to that Austin Powers character Fat Bastard saying "Git in mah belleh!" Hopefully this sweet Pixar film about the rebellious daughter of King Fergus and Queen Elinor in the hills of Scotland will change all that.

JULY

"Ice Age: Continental Drift," July 13

That gaggle of animal pals from the last three "Ice Age" movies come together again to fight pirates and explore the new world.

AUGUST

"Diary of a Wimpy Kid: Dog Days," Aug. 3

What is Greg going to do with the whole long summer ahead of him? Sorry kid, we don't feel bad for you.

"The Odd Life of Timothy Green," Aug. 17

Cindy and Jim Green (Jennifer Garner and Joel Edgerton) want to start a family but find themselves to be infertile. One night, they write down all the traits they'd want in a child, bury the box of notes in the backyard and boom, a dirt-covered kid appears on their doorstep soon after.

Music in the movie theater

Sing-alongs, dance-offs and an ode to Motown serve up plenty to snap your fingers to.

JUNE

"Rock of Ages," June 15

The Broadway musical ode to 1980s hair bands has had a long-awaited film adaptation in the works and we've been looking forward to it ever since a photo was leaked of Tom Cruise swinging topless above a stage. The cast is loaded with stars — Paul Giamatti, Alec Baldwin, Catherine Zeta Jones, Russell Brand and Bryan Cranston — and we're expecting this to be a top-quality event.

JULY

"Katy Perry: Part of Me," July 5

We'll doubt that you're going to get any good gossip out of this film that purports to share what Katy Perry's life is like on-stage and off, but the tweens will be out in full force, as it'll only be out in 3-D for the Fourth of July holiday weekend.

"Step Up Revolution," July 27

A group known for their cutting edge flash mob dance performances must band together when a rich businessman threatens to destroy their neighborhood. So they decide to protest-dance! Perhaps Occupy Wall Street could learn a thing or two from their pop and lock moves.

AUGUST

"Sparkle," Aug. 17

This remake of the 1976 film of the same name bears similarities to "Dreamgirls" — being about a Motown girl group that makes it big. It stars Jordin Sparks and Whitney Houston in her last onscreen performance.

Mortals combat

"We don't need no superpowers," say these films about tough dudes duking it out in the past, present and future.

JUNE

"G.I. Joe: Retaliation," June 29

Though 2009's "G.I. Joe: Rise of the Cobra" only got middling reviews, here we have the second installment, starring looks-that-could-melt-your-semiautomatic Channing Tatum as Captain Duke Hauser alongside Bruce Willis and Dwayne Johnson.

AUGUST

"Total Recall," Aug. 3

Filling the shoes of one erstwhile California governor who played the role in 1990, Colin Farrell is a man of the future who goes to a clinic to have memories of a more interesting life planted into his head. When the procedure goes awry (or does it?), he finds himself hunted by the government.

► Bruce Willis joins the "G.I. Joe" team this summer.

"The Expendables II," Aug. 17

Chuck Norris is in this movie. That is all you need to know. Liam Hemsworth also joins the rest of the crew, which is on a revenge mission once one of their own gets killed in the line of duty. But come on, Chuck Norris!

"Lawless," Aug. 31

Rocker Nick Cave penned this Prohibition-era film about brothers who get into the bootlegging business. Given that the film is loaded with top-flight talent like Tom Hardy, Jessica Chastain and Gary Oldman, this could be the sleeper hit of the summer.

Boston Ballet has got a new 'Etudes'

► With "Etudes," Boston Ballet saves the best for last.

Boston Ballet wraps up its final performances of the season with "Fancy Free" — a the three-ballet program that is sure to leave you in a good mood.

In Peter Martins' "Barber Violin Concerto," Lia Cirio and Pavel Gurevich pair against Sylvia Deaton and Yuri Yanowsky. It's a perfect mix of classical and contemporary styles. Deaton and Gurevich's duet is playful and light, but the work as a whole lacks cohesiveness.

Jerome Robbins' "Fancy Free" features three sailors, led by James Whiteside competing to impress female passers-by while on shore leave. The spirited choreography is like watching a silent movie, taking more than just dance technique to pull off. It's a fun, flirty work that BB has studied and executed flawlessly.

Saving perhaps the best ballet for last, Harald Lander's

"Etudes" is like a Degas painting coming to life. The ballet begins with barre work and ends with an intense finale. The silhouettes of ballerinas in classic tutus, prepping reiterate how precise ballet can be. The men steal the show on this one — Jeffrey Cirio, and Paul Arrais and Nelson Madrigal show what it means to be a professional.

What's next, "Jenga: This Time It's Personal"? It was uncertain how they could possibly turn a board game into a movie, and now that we've seen it, it's clear that it can't be done — very well, at least. Two-plus hours of soulless claptrap and joyless cacophony of twisted metal, AC/DC songs and angry aliens does not a movie make. Here's a new title: "Shock and Awful."

If you are going to see this movie, go for the whole thing. That way by the time the movie gets to the attack, you'll be so tired of the Hopper Brothers (Taylor Kitsch and Alexander Skarsgard) and the stoic admiral (Liam "Paycheck" Neeson) that you'll pray the aliens (big lizard-eyed creatures in "Iron Man" drag) will make short work of the bunch of them so you can leave the theater and do something productive with your time. It'll give you a sense of purpose, which, otherwise, this movie doesn't have. ● RICHARD CROUSE

'What to Expect When You're Expecting'

Grade: D+

The problem with big ensemble

comedies that weave five stories is that no single tale ever gets involved enough for true engagement. In "What to Expect," a quintuplet of couples struggles through all the cliched contrivances of childbirth — minus single parenthood, that is. The frothy comedy placates to the played-out parental mind-set with predictable reassurance, making this one baby without any real teeth.

Internet left you without an attention span? You'll love this annual festival, which features 53 10-minute plays by 53 different local playwrights — each of them ends just as you're about to drift off anyway. It's probably the most diverse theatrical experience you can have all year in Boston, and, clocking in at 10 hours, one of the longest.

Wes Peden and Jay Gilligan are the creators of this internationally renowned modern juggling show. Both are prodigious masters of the art (Peden started at the ripe old age of 3!), so the stuff you'll see here is way beyond the average circus fare. Seriously, these guys are probably two of the best jugglers alive.

This Barsuk Records band's name sounds like a lost (and probably crappy) album by Barsuk alums Death Cab for Cutie, but their sound is much more upbeat than Death Cab, a mix of wiry new wave tension and the melodic style of hipster electro-pop like MGMT. It's almost like a missing link between indie rock and electro-pop.

This local band draws inspiration from early '70s hard rock bands like Led Zeppelin and Mountain, whose monstrous riffage, bludgeon-like heaviness, and screaming Hammond organ they imitate perfectly. Is it original? No, but this sound isn't supposed to be. It's about rocking out hard with plenty of wailing guitar solos, and these guys bring that in spades.

Mystic Choral, an Arlington-based community chorus, presents an eclectic concert of spiritual music with an emphasis on rhythm. You might not think "burial ground" when you think "fine art," but the wide variety of monuments and tombs at Mount Auburn Cemetery practically constitute an outdoor sculpture museum. Of course, it's also an easy place to get lost, so we recommend you take this tour with Historical Collections curator Meg L. Winslow if you want to spot the highlights.

► Checking in with some of Hollywood's biggest names to see what they've been up to — in their own words, in 140 characters or fewer.

Today, Rob Lowe is invading Paris, Arnold Schwarzenegger will be back, Rosario Dawson hopefully isn't scoping out new pets and Joan Rivers has some opinions about Tom Cruise.

@RobLowe: Just landed. Ready to attack some Parisian cuisine. There will be NO austerity! #France @Schwarzenegger: Taking off from L.A. to New Orleans. Excited to see Sly and start working on The Tomb. You will be hearing more from me soon!

@Rosariodawson: I love elephants

@Joan_Rivers: Tom Cruise gave a candid interview in the June issue of Playboy magazine, which I assume he truly DOES read only for the articles.

THE WORD

Metro's Monica Weymouth shares her take on the world of gossip @monicaatmetro monica.weymouth@metro.us

Channing Tatum takes it off again

Before his impossibly square jaw and superhero-grade shoulders were landing him movie roles, Channing Tatum was a stripper — not that he's shy about it. His new film, "Magic Mike," is loosely based on his former gig, and he wants everyone to see it — not just those who would have killed to play his little spoon in "The Vow."

"With Joe Manganiello naked in a movie, I think even straight guys are going to be, 'S—, I need to see that,'" the actor tells OUT's June/July issue of his co-star.

Tatum

"That man is a specimen." (Go ahead — this one is worth the Google intermission.)

But while he's never tried to hide his past, Tatum admits he prefers his new job to stripteasing. "You are on a stage with people yelling at you, and you feel you're a rock star, but you're nothing — you're just a guy taking off his clothes, looking like a fool in a stupid outfit," he says.

We would point out that he essentially did the same exact thing in "Dear John," but there was that scene where he squinted on a porch for awhile.

Wine pairings, 'Real Housewives' style

When we caught up with "Real Housewives of New Jersey" star Teresa Giudice to talk about her new book, "Fabulicious Fast & Fit," she let us in on another project she's working on.

Giudice

"I just formulated my own bellini — it's called Fabellini, and it's peach and raspberry," she says. "Eventually it's gonna be national, it's gonna be sold at all liquor stores. That would go great with any of my meals."

Fabellini with fabulicious food: We love it when a Jersey girl does our wine pairings.

—With reporting by Meredith Engel

Second Travolta accuser drops suit, lawyers up

The second man to accuse John Travolta of fouls on the massage table has dropped his lawsuit but hired Gloria Allred, the same high-profile attorney now representing his first accuser.

"We believe that the lawsuit should be filed in another court and, therefore, the lawsuit was dismissed without prejudice," Allred tells TMZ. "We will be conferring with our client regarding what will happen next in this case."

As for Travolta's lawyers, they're one step ahead of you. "Not one penny has been paid, nor do we have any intention to pay any money for these ridiculous and false claims," Marty Singer tells TMZ.

Lopez holding out?

Although Jennifer Lopez has cited family commitments as the reason she's hesitant to sign on to Season 3 of "American Idol," there could be simpler, more established motives at play: money and publicity.

"J.Lo and 'American Idol' are striving for headlines. Along with it being 'strictly business,' she is also for sure wanting more money than Britney Spears to return," a source tells PerezHilton.com.

Considering Spears is raking in $15 million for doing the honors on "X Factor," we're not sure she'll get it — and we don't envy the person who tells her that.

Lopez

Talking points

No regrets, says Russell Brand

When it comes to Russell Brand's marriage to Katy Perry — which he ended suddenly after 14 months — there are no hard feelings, at least as far as Brand is concerned. "I was very happy to be married with her. She's such a beautiful human being, and I just have only love and positivity for her," Brand tells Ellen DeGeneres in an interview. "But sometimes, when you're in a relationship, I suppose it doesn't work out, does it? But that doesn't mean I regret it or anything." It also doesn't mean he wants to keep up with Perry, though: Last week, Brand unfollowed his ex on Twitter.

Is the Age of Gaga over?

Lady Gaga has lost her seat atop the Forbes Celebrity 100, the magazine's list of the most powerful stars based on their earnings and social media reach. Last year, Gaga held the top spot, but for 2012 she's slipped to number five. The new leaders? Jennifer Lopez, followed by Oprah Winfrey, Justin Bieber and Rihanna, in that order.

Nick Stahl reported missing

Actor Nick Stahl's wife has reported him missing, telling police that she last saw the

Stahl

"Terminator 3: Rise of the Machines" star on May 9, according to TMZ. Stahl has reportedly been spending a lot of time around L.A.'s Skid Row area, and his wife, Rose, has suggested drugs may be involved. In February, she filed court papers declaring that the two were separated and asking that Nick's time with their 2-year-old daughter be limited and supervised.

You and everyone else, Stewart

Kristen Stewart, who met boyfriend Robert Pattinson while co-starring in the "Twilight" films, is eager to get together with him on-screen again. "I'm dying to make another movie with Rob, I think that we're a good team," she tells Celebuzz. But are they open to teaming up for the movie version of "Fifty Shades of Grey," the romance novel that was inspired by their "Twilight" characters? "I haven't read it, so I don't know what it is, but I would love to work with him again."

Girls' weekend

1: Jane Fonda and Frieda Pinto sassed it up at the Cannes Film Festival yesterday.

2: We know Snow White lives happily ever after, but if we were Kristen Stewart, we'd be afraid of Charlize Theron's evil queen in "Snow White and the Huntsman." The co-stars promoted the film in South Africa yesterday.

3: We don't know why Eva Longoria is at Cannes, but we do know she looks better than ever.

4: Sometimes there's nothing wrong with keeping it just plain pretty. Get your fluffy on, Rachel Bilson.

5: Phoebe Price isn't going to stop showing up at Cannes red carpets looking like this until we acknowledge her. Fine. Hi Phoebe.

6: For a former Pussycat Doll, Nicole Scherzinger looked pretty great at the London premiere of "Men In Black 3."

Budget math off

RE: "ON THE US DEFICIT: PARTY POLITICS RULE": Sorry, Mr. Penner, you can't refute facts either! The enormous cost (after a major tax cut) of financing the Iran and Afghanistan wars was kept off-budget all during the Bush presidency. That's a major factor in the deficit today, no matter how much Republicans try to deny it. KATHY KOURIAN, VIA E-MAIL

Bush actually inherited a $258 billion on-budget primary surplus; as you stated, the national debt stood at $10.6 trillion when he left office. However, Bush kept the cost of two wars off budget and the U.S. military has largely paid for the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan through emergency spending measures, in effect keeping wartime costs off the books. In addition to masking skyrocketing budget growth at the Department of Defense, this process allowed the services to treat budget supplementals as a piggy bank. So the actual price of these wars is still unknown and is part of the deficit that you place at President Obama's feet. Obama took office in the middle of the biggest deficit year in history, dealing with two wars and the most severe recession since the 1930s. It seems to me, Mr. Penner, that your letter supports the fact that "Republicans distort facts to destroy the Obama presidency." BARB MILUSKI, VIA E-MAIL

According to Larry Penner, our national debt was $10.6 trillion when Obama took office and currently stands at $16.4 trillion. Larry's numbers suggest an increase of $5.8 trillion. Larry instead suggests that Obama somehow increased our debt by $6.6 trillion and $5.6 trillion. Not only is this internally inconsistent, neither of these is equal to the increase as calculated by Larry's own numbers. How much credence should we give to the fiscal views of a man who has apparently failed basic math? MARY SMITH, VIA E-MAIL

To Larry Penner: Your accusation to Brayden Simms of refuting history is a fallacy (Simms does his homework) and hypocrisy; plus you're ignoring history, which is just as bad. To wit: Bush started both a recession and a war, paid for neither, and handed them to Obama. Do you forget too that Obama ended the war, saving American dollars — and lives, too? J. ANDREW SMITH, VIA E-MAIL

Mr. Penner forgets that President Clinton left W. Bush a surplus. So it leaves one to figure that President Bush squandered the surplus, plus another $4.8 trillion, in eight years. Thank you though, Mr. Penner, for validating that President Bush bled this country dry. PETER FOGA, VIA E-MAIL

President Obama
can count them out

RE: "EQUALITY CHALLENGED AMONG PERSECUTED": I had so much respect for Obama, not anymore. Why didn't he just stay neutral? I'm not prejudiced, but what happened to honor and respect for God? BELKY DIAZ, VIA E-MAIL

African-American people like myself will never support marriage equality for homosexuals because of their perverted lifestyle. How repulsive it is for a president to support gay marriage. DAVID BOWMAN, VIA E-MAIL

Game 4: Friday at Sixers, 8 p.m. (BOS leads, 2-1) Game 5: Monday at Celtics, TBD Game 6: If necessary, Wednesday

76ers seek redemption

► Sixers look to put Game 3 in rearview ► Brand says Sixers were 'overconfident' prior to the blowout ► Pierce's health looks to be better ► Garnett looking five years younger

It only took the first 12 minutes of Game 3 for the Celtics to remember that they are, in fact, the better team in this series.

Once that happened, it was all downhill for the Sixers, as evident by the C's 107-91 stomping Wednesday night.

"We all were pretty focused [Wednesday] in shootaround," Rajon Rondo said after Game 3. "Obviously,

Quoted

"(Boston) is very experienced but they're not old ... We were a little overconfident, but as we saw (in Game 3), it wasn't like that."

SIXERS FORWARD ELTON BRAND

► Evan Turner and Andre Iguodala were silenced in Game 3.

23 Kevin Garnett is somehow rejuvenated this postseason as he is putting up 23.7 points per game against in the series.

we had two close games at home and we wanted to show these guys, send a message [Wednesday night] and I think our guys did a good job of that."

If the message was, "You can't stop us," then the Sixers heard it loud and clear. But it's how Philly plays Friday (8 p.m., ESPN) that will determine if they have a snowball's chance in this series.

Down 3-1 going back to Boston? Forget about it. But going back with a 2-2 split would be just fine for a Philly team that has already proven it can win on the road in Boston during the playoffs.

To win, the Sixers have to figure out a way to limit Kevin Garnett. Philadelphia successfully did that in Game 2, but KG had his way with Spencer Hawes, Elton Brand and Lavoy Allen in Game 3, dominating the second quarter and finishing with 27 points and 13 rebounds in 30 minutes.

Hawes, Brand and Allen combined for — wait for it — 11 points, and 10 rebounds in 60 minutes of playing time. That just ain't gonna cut it fellas.

But Garnett knows that a repeat effort of Game 3 will be "the biggest challenge," and Philly will be out for blood.

"[The Sixers] have a lot of young legs, have a lot of individual players that can put up buckets," Garnett said after Game 3. "And we have to respect that and be ready for that."

The New England Revolution will host "Salute to Heroes Night" in conjunction with Armed Forces Day at Gillette Stadium on Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

The Revolution, who are playing their best soccer of the season right now following last week's 4-1 win over Vancouver, will look to continue their winnings ways against the Houston Dynamo.

Papelbon to headline Red Sox-Phils rivalry

Interleague play. It used to be an almost annual chance for Red Sox fans to invade Citizens Bank Park, with "Youk" chants galore. Those days are long gone.

When Boston heads to Philadelphia for a three-game set, the stands will be packed with Phillies fans. The ballpark has sold out 238 straight games, including the postseason. The Sox-Phillies rivalry, while tame, is usually one of the better AL-NL ones.

Adding intrigue is Jonathan Papelbon. The closer swapped teams this off-season, trading in his Red Sox jersey for a Phillies one, after inking a $50 million deal. On Opening Day, Papelbon said that earning his first save in a non-Boston uniform wasn't weird.

But how about earning one against his former mates?

► Papelbon

Sox vs. Phillies

Starting pitching has been the Red Sox's main issue thus far. But Boston could definitely have used Jonathan Papelbon earlier in the season. In 15 appearances in 2012, Pap has 10 saves.

Cinco Ocho. That's Papelbon's alter ego. While the experience of pitching against the Red Sox didn't appear to bother Papelbon, he did spew some venom at Boston's training staff.

"The previous trainer tried to tell me that he knew everything about me," he told WEEI. "It's just not the case. I know myself. I knew how to get through a 162-game season. A trainer doesn't know how to do that." METRO

"It won't be weird. It might be a little weird for Pap, but it won't be weird for Cinco," Papelbon told WEEI. "Cinco is like a great white, when he smells blood he attacks."

Cinco, of course, is short for

Sports in brief

► Vilma

Vilma files suit against Goodell

Take that, commish.

Jonathan Vilma is so confident that he is innocent in the Saints' bounty scandal that is suing Roger Goodell for defamation of character.

The NFL commissioner suspended Vilma for the entire season after an investigation revealed that he was the leader of the bounty program.

Vilma wrote the following on his Twitter account: "As I've said before .. I NEVER PAID, NOR INTENDED TO PAY ANY AMOUNT OF MONEY, TO ANY PLAYER FOR INTENTIONALLY HURTING AN OPPONENT."

Vilma's lawsuit, filed Thursday in New Orleans, asks for unspecified monetary damages.

The Saints' bounty program reportedly awarded between 22 and 27 players with thousands of dollars for putting big hits and — in some cases — knocking out the star players on opposing teams.

MLB changes playoff format

Major League Baseball's owners have approved the changing of the division series five-game format from the traditional 2-2-1 to a 2-3 format, giving the team with home-field advantage the final three games in each series. METRO
